GET PUBLISHED! SHARE YOUR LIBRARY RESEARCH AND EXPERIENCES

Fall 2016 Theme Issue — Libraries using social media: communicating with your communities

The editors seek research studies and case studies addressing the evolution of social media used to communicate with library users, other libraries, library service providers and vendors, and serving a community. Case studies illustrating service delivery through social media outlets are also welcome. Studies including or addressing social media metrics are welcome. Topics may include use of social media through marketing, information literacy, reference, collection development as well as organizational policies regarding social media. Proposals due no later than September 2, 2016 (4 sentences or longer describing the topic of your article). Referenced article submission: October 12, 2016. Non-referenced article submission: October 31, 2016. Issue publication goal: November 15, 2016.
